

NO PLACE HERE FOR PERSONAL POLITICS.

HILL PREDICTS END OF TAMMANY HALL.

MARTIN ENGEL, ALARMED AT JEROME THREATS, TO RETIRE

Martin Engel, Tammany leader of the notorious Eighth Assembly District, to-day announced his intention of retiring as leader.

Coming as it does, two days after the election of Justice Jerome as District-Attorney, the general acceptance of Engel's withdrawal is that he is the first of the political leaders accused during the campaign for decency to attempt to get out of the way.

It was over Engel's district—the notorious Red Light section—that the agitation that led to the appointment of the Committees of Fifteen and Five began.

When The Evening World communicated the news of Engel's intentions to Justice Jerome, at Lakeville, Conn., over the long-distance telephone, he said significantly:

"I have often said what I thought of the Red Light district and its people, and often reiterated what I would do if I had the chance. The principle involved has given me the chance. Actions will now speak for themselves."

Croker this morning, Martin Engel spent about two hours in deep thought.

At the conclusion of this thinking he tentatively announced that he would retire from the position of leader.

"No use talking," he said to an Evening World reporter, "when a man gets to be fifty-five years old it is time for him to take a rest. I think a younger man ought to have a chance as leader in the Eighth."

"I think at this time that I ought to say something about my district. I will give $10,000 to any man, Justice Jerome included, who can find a disorderly house in it."

"In my district, Fitzpatrick's and Scully's there are 25,000 people. In proportion to the population there is less crime in those three districts than in any other place in the world."

Engel talked long and earnestly about the ingratitude of men he had helped.

MAGISTRATE MOTT SAYS
WOMEN TOO READY TO SWEAR

"The difference between a woman and a man is that when a woman thinks or believes a thing to be so she is ready to swear to it, while a man doesn't swear to a thing unless he sees it and knows it to be true," said Magistrate Mott in West Side Court this afternoon when Miss Maria Ellerbrook, of No. 320 East Eighty-seventh street, a pretty teacher, applied for a warrant for a bad boy who hit one of her pupils with a stone.

She admitted that she hadn't seen the boy throw the stone, but was sure that he had done it because people told her so.

She didn't get the warrant.

COMMISSIONER FITCHIE LIKELY TO LOSE HIS JOB.

Commissioner of Immigration Thomas C. Fitchie was called to Washington to-day, and many of the officials on Ellis Island say that in all probability he will not be reappointed.

The recent scandals at the immigration depot here, when undesirable foreigners upon the payment of a small fee to the inspectors were allowed to land as citizens, have, it is believed, injured all chances of Mr. Fitchie being able to checkmate the politicians who are seeking to get a favorite appointed to the office, which is looked upon as a sinecure.

MOLINEUX CASE IS POSTPONED.

Judge Newburger, of Part 1, General Sessions, to-day granted a week's postponement in the Molineux case.

The hearing of the argument on the motion to quash the indictment will, therefore, be heard next Thursday.

Assistant District-Attorney Osborne asked for further time in which to prepare the argument of the State against the motion to quash.

Attorneys for Molineux agreed to the delay asked for by the State, and for another week Molineux will remain in the Tombs waiting for the court to decide whether he shall go free or stand another trial.

"The effect of Tammany's defeat on Tuesday," said ex-Senator David B. Hill to-day, "is bound to be good on the Democratic party throughout the country. It is the beginning of the end of Tammany Hall."

Mr. Hill came down from Albany this afternoon on legal business.

After spending some time in the office of Wm. F. Sheehan, 32 Nassau street, he went to the Downtown Club, where he met John C. Sheehan, the leader of the Greater New York Democracy, and had lunch with him.

"It goes without saying," said Senator Hill, "that I am greatly gratified at the result of Tuesday's election."

"My fight always has been for a true Democracy that represents a government for the people by the people."

This is the beginning of the end of Tammany Hall.

The effect on the Democratic party throughout the country will be good.

There is no room in this country for an organization founded on pure personalism.

It goes without saying I am greatly gratified at the result.

Tammany will work out its own ruin.

"The result of Tammany's defeat on the Democratic party throughout the country is bound to be good."

"The people are good judges and they may be relied upon in the end."

When Senator Hill was asked if he intended to join in the plan to reorganize the Democracy of Greater New York, he declined to discuss it.

"I am here on business," he said, "and I am working hard to get home to-night."

Hill Favors Reorganization.

John C. Sheehan said on this point: "Ex-Gov. Hill is heart and soul with us in this proposition. It is too early yet to talk of the State Democracy, but we are going to have a reorganization of the Democracy in the five boroughs of the greater city."

ignores Alleged Letter from French
Consul-General Recommending
Her Restoral to Frenchman.

In the face of a letter purporting to come from the French Consul-General, recommending that Marcelle Chevalier, the girl arrested in the Tenderloin and given into the care of the Sisters of the Divine Compassion, be released to go with Octave Beaumont, the man who brought her from France, Justice Gieseler this afternoon dismissed the writ of habeas corpus and sent the girl back to the nunnery.

When this decision was translated to her the sad-faced girl turned her eyes toward heaven and her lips moved as if in prayer of thanksgiving.

Probation Officer Amy Walsh, the Salvation Army lassie, triumphantly led her shrinking charge away, while the dark-skinned Frenchman, who has sworn that he was the girl's husband, slouched out defeated.

AMMON ARRESTED
AS MILLER'S 'PAL.'

Great Commotion as He Is Taken from the Referee's Hearing.

While the hearing to determine the final disposition of a great part of the Miller Syndicate loot was in progress to-day before Referee John A. Straley, in the Home Life Building, a great commotion was caused by the entrance of Central Office Detective McConville, who placed Col. Robert Ammon, Miller's counsel, under arrest.

Although McConville would not tell the charge, it was learned that Ammon was arrested on charges of grand larceny and of receiving stolen property.

Two weeks ago Ammon said he never had any Miller money except his counsel fees, and recently has admitted having $10,000 of the Syndicate plunder.

Ammon telephoned to bondsmen and lawyers to meet him at Police Headquarters.

Ammon was arraigned before Magistrate Cornell, in Centre Street Police Court, at 3 o'clock this afternoon. He was represented by Lawyer Vorhaus.

Ammon pleaded to a charge of receiving stolen goods brought by Francis T. Coleman, who alleged that Ammon got $100,000 of the loot of the Miller 520 per cent. scheme.

The hearing was postponed until Nov. 14.

On Ammon's representation that his arrest was a violation of faith, inasmuch as District-Attorney Fitchie had promised him a chance to explain before any steps were taken to arrest him, Magistrate Cornell paroled him in the custody of his counsel.

Goslin Tells Dark Secret.

Alfred R. Goslin, notorious in many shady Wall Street deals, was on the witness stand to-day in the hearing before Referee Straley.

It was brought out that Goslin was really the founder and backer of Seymour, Johnson & Co., which started with a fine reputation. Goslin's connection with the firm was kept a dark secret.

H. S. Seymour, partner in Seymour, Johnson & Co., followed. He denied both Goslin's and Ammon's testimony.

Seymour declared positively that Goslin organized the firm, remaining in the background, and that Goslin always got a per cent. of the profits, as did Ammon, himself, drawing Ammon's share.

"Who were the actual partners in the firm when it failed?" Goslin and either Ammon or Miller, as the case is.

The hearing was then adjourned until next Monday morning at 10 o'clock.

HENRY HART DIES OF BROKEN HEART.

Never Recovered from Blow When Third Avenue Street Railway Was Wrecked.

Henry Hart, founder, and for fifty years head of the Third Avenue Railroad, died this morning at his home, No. 79 Madison avenue, at the age of ninety-one years.

Mr. Hart complained of a headache and acute pains in his limbs last Sunday. Dr. A. H. Friedberg, of Sixty-fifth street and Madison avenue, the family physician, treated him, and the old gentleman appeared to improve until last night, when he had a relapse.

His condition became serious at 1 o'clock this morning and Dr. Fredenberg was sent for. Mr. Hart was beyond aid of medical skill, but he retained his scant hold on life until 10 o'clock.

At his bedside when he died were his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Lyon, and her five children. Mr. Hart had never married. For many years Mrs. Lyon lived at his home and looked after his wants. Mr. Hart, it is understood, has made Mrs. Lyon his sole heir.

In spite of his advanced age he was a vigorous man until the disastrous wreck of the property he had spent the best years of his life building up. The failure of the Third Avenue road in February, 1900, was a blow to Henry Hart from which he never recovered—a blow that materially hastened his death.

Two years ago Henry Hart was worth $10,000,000. It is doubtful if his estate will prove to be of much value. The men who wrecked the Third

MRS. THOMAS CARNEY DIES
FROM CARBOLIC ACID.

Dying She Says: "I'm Sorry, I Don't Know Why I Took the Poison."

Mrs. Thomas Carney, fifty-one years old, wife of a well-to-do liquor dealer, of No. 75 West Ninety-second street, died at 2 P. M. to-day after taking carbolic acid at 9 o'clock last night. She was insane from illness at the time.

The Carneys have a handsome apartment. The family left consists of the father and four children. Mrs. Carney had been ill for several months, but he believed to be improving.

She was in very good spirits last night when Mr. Carney left the house, but went to her room soon afterward and took the poison, which had been kept in the house for cleaning purposes.

The children heard Mrs. Carney scream and found her half unconscious in her bedroom. They called Dr. Alfred Meyer, the family physician, of No. 102 West Ninety-third street, who revived Mrs. Carney by the time her husband returned.

"Why did you do this?" asked Mr. Carney.

"I'm sorry. I don't know why I did it," cried the dying woman.

Mr. Carney conducts two saloons, one at Eighty-third street and Columbus avenue, the other at Ninety-fourth street. The family are very popular in the neighborhood and Mr. Carney is well known in political circles.

AUTO CAUSES A FATAL RUNAWAY.

One Man Killed and Two Injured in Collision with Trolley Car.

One man was killed and two seriously injured this afternoon by a horse taking fright at a steam automobile at One Hundred and Third street and Central Park West.

The three men were bill-poster, working for the Grand Opera-house. They were all in a big spring wagon when the auto whizzed past them.

The horse took fright, ran a block and dashed the wagon against a north-bound trolley car.

The driver, Thomas Gilligan, was picked up unconscious. Thomas Hein and the other man were badly cut and bruised.

Gilligan died in an ambulance on the way to J. H. Wright Hospital.

The police were not able to find out who owned or was driving the automobile.

BLAST CUTS OFF
SUPPLY OF WATER.

Tunnel Explosion Bursts Main, and for Awhile
There Is a Famine on Cathedral Heights.

A blast in the Rapid Transit tunnel was the means to-day of cutting off Cathedral Heights and Manhattanville from all water supply. For more than an hour no water could be obtained for any of the other institutions in that vicinity. Aside from the general inconvenience caused, some of the patients in the hospital for whom water was needed suffered severely.

An exceptionally heavy blast was fired in the tunnel along Broadway, near One Hundred and Thirty-third street, just before noon. Before the vibration had ceased it was seen that the shock had burst the big 36-inch main, which, running down Broadway from the High Bridge pumping station, supplies Washington Heights, Manhattanville and Cathedral Heights as far south as One Hundred and Sixteenth street with water.

A great deluge poured from the break, and in less than two minutes the water was rushing in small rivers down Broadway to the bottom of the hill at One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street, where it turned off and flowed west to the North River. Cellars and basements along the water's path were flooded. Teams and pedestrians caught in the stream floundered helplessly about.

Just as it began to look as if the consequences might be even more serious, some one telephoned to the Department of Water Supply regarding the accident. Instructions were at once sent to close the water gates at One Hundred and Thirty-sixth and One Hundred and Eighteenth streets.

This ended the street flood, but it also stopped any water from passing through the main south of One Hundred and Thirty-sixth street. The little water then in that section of the main was soon exhausted, and within fifteen minutes that section of the city was dry. In none of the houses or stores, as well as in the institutions already named, could a drop of running water be obtained.

The famine lasted for more than an hour, when the authorities succeeded in getting the emergency pipe in operation. The capacity of this pipe is, however, comparatively small, so that until the break in the big main is repaired the inhabitants of the upper west side cannot obtain the amount of water ordinarily used.

Workers are now busy on the break. They hope to have it mended before to-morrow morning.

As a result of the flood of water rushing over it, a section of the street at Broadway and One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street caved in. David Hennessey, an employee of the Department of Highways, was driving a car over the place when the caving occurred and teamster, horse and truck went down with the crash. Hennessey was pulled out by the means of a rope, but his horse and cart were still at the bottom of the hole late this afternoon.

Three other horses were also caught in the caving. They went down near the edge, however, and were easily extricated.

The shortage was discovered last Thursday by Supreme Commander Markley who was examining the books of the order. On being confronted with the shortage Thompson broke down and confessed. He then signed a confession drawn up by Commander Markley. It has been impossible to locate Thompson since the matter leaked out at noon to-day.

"I was engaged in a legitimate business venture in which I had made a large investment and found myself in a position where further money was necessary to save myself from bankruptcy and ruin. There was apparently no chance for loss of my property, trust and used the funds of the order, at the time believing there was no question of my ability to replace them within a short time."

The amount I used was fifty-seven thousand dollars. I have no hope of being able to repay this amount. I know the order is protected from loss by the surety bond of nearly twice the amount in a perfectly responsible company, but this does not lessen my mental suffering. I have no other resources, and I am only awaiting such action as may be taken and abide the consequences."

FORT HURON, Mich., Nov. 7.—Charles D. Thompson, of this city, Supreme Finance Keeper of the Supreme Order of Maccabees, is a self-confessed defaulter in the sum of $57,000. The order, however, is protected from loss by Thompson's surety bond.

The shortage is acknowledged in the following letter to D. P. Markley, Supreme Commander of the order:

"It is with a feeling of distress and shame that I tender herewith my resignation as Supreme Finance Keeper of the order of which you are the head. And this step is taken with a bitter realization that I am no longer worthy the companionship and association of my fellow-officers."

"I have held the position since the order was founded, have during most of that time been officially associated with the present supreme officers and never until now did I in any way betray my trust."
